Middle East Images

September program presents a collection of rare hand-colored lantern slides from the early 1900's

The September 11 program of the Photographic History Society of New England at Waltham High School will present a large group of scanned images selected from PHSNE member Gunter Mueller's collection of over 700 hand colored lantern slides of the Middle East. The glass originals, which date from 1900 to the 1920s, are the work of the American Colony Photographers, an organization headquartered in Jerusalem, which was then in Palestine.

The American Colony Photographers had its roots in the American missionary movement. Its members emigrated from the United States to Jerusalem in the 1880s and after they had established themselves in their new surroundings they pursued the business of selling photographs and lantern slides to tourists to sustain their organization and their missionary work.

Gunter Mueller

“One has to appreciate the time, effort, and talent that went into the creation of these now rare hand-colored slides and the historical record they have preserved,” says Mueller. “The quality of the coloring and the diverse subject matter — ethnic, occupational, landscape, vegetation, religious, historical — I believe make this collection unique.”

Mueller will narrate a projected video show of his digital scans of slides in his collections. He will also show color prints made from the originals.

Mueller, a retired mechanical engineer and manager, says he has been a serious amateur black-and-white photographer a collector of old photography for many years. “One of my retirement tasks is spending time researching some of the photography related items that I have in my collection. It is amazing that with the help of the Internet what only 20 years ago would have been an almost impossible task for the casual collector now becomes just a matter of putting in some time in front of the computer. I hope this presentation will encourage others to bring their hidden treasures into the open for others to enjoy.”

A Program to Get Your Teeth Into

For the May meeting PHSNE members Bud Midgley and John Wojtowicz shared some of their more arcane collectables and stories. Here John tries out his CORECO dental camera based on a Wirgin 35mm rangefinder on Bud's pearly whites. Membership Chairman Adrian Levesque, a real-life dentist, stands by to prevent serious accidents.

Photography Events in the Museums and Galleries

By James Hill

At the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston (465 Huntington Avenue, Boston, MA 02115, telephone 617-267-9300, www.mfa.org) "Ansel Adams" will present photographs from the Lane Collection, described as the "largest private holding of Adams' work in the world," from August 21 to December 31, 2005. The exhibition will showcase rarely exhibited photographs from the 1920s through the 1970s as well as such iconic Adams images as Monolith, The Face of Half Dome and Moonrise, Hernandez, New Mexico. On display as part of the exhibition will be a Folmer Century Universal 8" x 10" camera from the 1930s (not an actual camera that Adams owned, but included to illustrate a type of camera Adams used), and a Kodak No.1 Brownie Camera of the type Adams took as teenager on his first trip to Yosemite in 1916 – loaned to the Museum for this exhibit from the collection of PHSNE's Jack Naylor.

"Young America: The Daguerreotypes of Southworth and Hawes," billed as the largest and most comprehensive exhibit of the artistry of the Boston photographic partners Albert Sands Southworth and Josiah Johnson Hawes, will be moving from the International Center of Photography in New York City to the George Eastman House International Museum of Photography and Film (900 East Avenue, Rochester, NY 14607, telephone 585-271-3361, www.eastmanhouse.org) from October 1, 2005 to January 8, 2006. The exhibit will then visit New England at the Addison Gallery of American Art on the campus of Phillips Academy in Andover, Massachusetts, January 28 to April 29, 2006 (180 Main Street, Andover, MA 01810, telephone 978-749-4015, www.andover.edu/addison/home.htm). Also at the Addison Gallery of American Art (see above), "Unfamiliar Territory: Photographs by Oscar Palacio" from September 6 to December 31, 2005. The Columbian-born, Boston-based artist's color photographs are described as focusing on ". . . the intersection and overlap between the natural and the constructed . . . the subtle oddities of daily life and the harmonies and delicate beauty in what we often overlook."

Pat MacMillan Passes snap shots to . . .

Since 1996, when our monthly one-page meeting notice evolved into the more newsy snap shots, editor Pat MacMillan has kept it snappy! Month after month she put the words and photos together, keeping us informed and on track about our programs and activities. The Board of Directors wishes to thank her for her years of dedicated service to PHSNE.

. . . David DeJean New snap shots Editor

Hello, PHSNE! I am pleased and proud to be taking over the job of newsletter editor for one of my favorite organizations — and more than a little awed to be following in the footsteps of Pat MacMillan, who has produced this publication for so long. Thank you, Pat. I hope I live up to your example.

I won't be able to do it without a lot of help. There's plenty of room for what you find most interesting about photographic history and contemporary news in snap shots, but you have to tell me what it is. I need to hear from you with news, with ideas, with pictures. I know we're an organization of fanatic collectors, and I'd particularly like to publish photos and stories from you about what you've collected — your long-time treasures, your newest finds. What are your favorite stories? What anniversaries of famous people, companies, discoveries should we celebrate? E-mail me text and photos or just say hello at ddejean@dejean.com.
